Future Leaders in Public Service Internship Program

Our nation's current and future challenges—from the COVID-19 pandemic and national security threats to economic turmoil, racial inequity and more—make it imperative that government identify, recruit and retain the next generation of public servants.

Managed by the Partnership for Public Service, the Future Leaders in Public Service Internship Program is actively recruiting its summer 2023 cohort and seeking young talent—undergraduate, graduate and professional students from across disciplines—to join the federal workforce as paid interns.

With just under 7% of the full-time federal workforce under the age of 30, executive branch agencies are working to meet this need, prioritizing the design and implementation of paid internship programs that provide students with valuable work experience, an expanded professional network, and a better understanding of the importance and impact of public service.

As of December 2019, less than 7% of the full-time federal workforce is under the age of 30.

Applications to join the program's summer 2023 cohort are now open. Apply today at gogovernment.org/fellowship/future-leaders-in-public-service-internship-program.
